

Penney Peirce's "Oracle" Letter: A Deeper Look at 2025 through the Lens of Frequency

My Oracle Letter is usually out much earlier but I just couldn't get a fix on the whole year. Our politics has thrown us into such upheaval and so much hidden gunk is surfacing! Many people are upset, scared, and dipping into worst-possible-scenario thinking. I felt into it all, the players, the trends, the ugliness, the polarization, and the weird purposefulness of this catalytic time. Numerous threads are weaving together below the surface and I'm drawn—magnetized—to describe the dynamics. It seems important that we understand the disorientation and reorientation at work in the evolutionary process underway. There is a greater sanity at work!

It's Real-Live Tipping Point Time

We're in major flux, in a real, right-now, tightly focused tipping point. This is a year of tremendous change and will be followed by several more like it. It's a time for both chaos and crystal-clarity. Life is not going to go along as usual, as much as people want it to. We are experiencing what I can only call "the Acceleration." It's been happening steadily for decades but the last few years have brought wave after wave of truly unrelenting high-frequency energy into the earth—affecting our body, emotions, and mind, causing us to vibrate faster and faster.

Our perception—how we see the world and our own personal reality—is therefore shifting rapidly to a new higher frequency view, one that sees the physical and nonphysical realities as undivided and simultaneous. And yet the intensified energy also upsets many people and reinforces separatist, oppositional thinking.

2025 brings the grounded experience of a very real split running down the center of the American population, and of many other nations as well. It's as though there are two distinct realities now, not just two opinions. This polarization has been with us, and much discussed, for years but hasn't punched us in the gut, hasn't crystallized into a chasm until now. Ironically, the idea of improving our lives is at the forefront of those on both sides of the chasm.

It's just that there are two visions for how the improvement looks. Some see life as becoming a nearly magical, spiritually-based experience with radical trust in the sanity of the Flow, where freedom breeds healthy innovation that serves humanity and the earth, while others see it as resurrecting the past where ego was top dog, people had roles, life seemed more orderly, and domination, victimization, and control were disliked but tolerated as a sort of cloudy "normal."

The tipping point doesn't mean we're about to tip over and fall into the chasm! It's more that we've entered a doorway and the Flow is about to push us the rest of the way through into a higher-frequency reality that works beautifully for everyone.

Choice is Critical Now

Looking more deeply into the effect of the accelerating planetary and personal energy, which is definitely shaking us out of our comfort zones and stupors, there are two responses; two choices, really, about how to handle the intensity.

1) We feel disoriented, anxious, irritated, and even threatened by this invisible force that so easily upsets our equilibrium and accustomed way of being. We complain more, express doubt and confusion, or try to avoid discomfort by going unconscious. It's easy to blame—others, ourself, or events. Energy backs up behind the dam, causing physical unease and dysfunction, feelings of frustration and paralysis, or upsetting reactionary and even violent behavior. We feel like breaking something!

2) We welcome the disorienting stimulation and find ways for our body (and life) to adapt, letting the often tsunami-like fluidity pass through while bringing new vitality and insight. We learn to function at higher and higher frequencies and to simply drop old, low-frequency, limiting beliefs and habits. We become more transparent and “spacious,” more allowing and trusting. We discover a new harmony based on identifying as the soul, not just our 3D personality (personal reality). We feel like healing and creating something!

Response/Choice #1 causes the polarization so many are trapped within. Whether conservative or liberal, female or male, young or old, there are fixed beliefs and positions on both sides—and they tend to be oppositional: yes-no, good-bad, safe-dangerous, real-unreal, smart-stupid, normal-abnormal, etc. With this choice there is a need to be right, to defend a point of view that is held as part of one's identity. “If you don't agree with my ideas, you're attacking me.” Both sides can shun others and their ideas or treat them with disrespect, ridicule, humiliation, sabotage, banishment, or antagonism.

When there is resistance—not welcoming the new energy and its high-frequency perception—people retreat into familiar thinking and look to the past and longtime habits for what has worked to create comfort (status quo). They might rally around father figures—warm-hearted teacher-coach types, smart highly educated types, or powerful, wealthy, “successful” types who hopefully can guide and protect them from harmful change. Or they might stick with a credo or opinion, being pro or anti tariffs or spiritual healing, for example. It's always fear that activates polarization and keeps it alive. When you're caught in oppositional thinking, higher consciousness can't flow into and through you. Your system is too contracted and dense.

Response/Choice #2 dissolves polarization by including the “other” as part of oneself and of life’s totality—and that includes those who make us uncomfortable as well as the Acceleration itself. This merger is not about compromise, but complete acceptance of both sides by both sides. It produces understanding and respect. People who make this choice may have worked with psychological clearing and the spiritual path. They may be receiving important revelations and openings in consciousness, learning to discern universal Truth.

By adapting to and integrating the new high-frequency energy and consciousness, they experience the dissolution of low-frequency, negative, emotional and thought patterns. They feel less separate and understand that diversity is life-giving, not dangerous. Things like blame, jealousy, retribution, aggression, depression, dread, possessiveness, gossiping—even karma—fade. These were just ways to be and giving them attention isn’t that interesting—calling them into being is useless, a waste of time, and doesn’t feel good to anyone.

It becomes evident that these behaviors block higher consciousness, easy flow, perfect materialization, and personal joy. High and low frequencies can’t occupy the same space and time for long. Eventually, as Meister Eckhart said, “When the higher flows into the lower it transforms the nature of the lower into that of the higher.” Choice #2 brings us closer to understanding what “Love”—at every frequency—is.

Now Comes a Slight Wrinkle: The Waffling

We’re all in what I’ve been calling a “bridge time” between Ages, and many of us are partly clear and wise, yet still susceptible to backsliding into old beliefs, superficial identities, fears, anger, and fight-or flight-mode. A friend said, for all her clarity, that things on the news can still trigger her, as though she “just stepped on a thorn.” She immediately works to clear herself. I can relate, since as I was writing this, my neighbor stopped to chat and proudly told me he was a supporter of the President and all the current policies. I questioned something and he became accusatory, looked at the ground, shook his head, turned, and walked away. I was left with a clanging contraction in my chest, which took me thirty minutes to soften.

Many of us who are becoming clear can easily backslide into defensiveness. I have many spiritual friends who declare they won’t watch the news anymore, who just want to stay out of it. Some take a stand while holding an agenda rather than acting from “observe, don’t absorb.”

When the nearly-clear ones temporarily backslide, they validate and feed polarity and the current chasm.

On the other hand, there are people who've been comfortable in their tried and true, status quo comfort zone who now sense there is more, that things could be easier, better, and more interesting. They may be reading books, attending workshops, and sensing they don't quite fit with their peers or corporate job anymore. As the more traditional ones yearn and grow, they reduce the power of polarity.

Are you feeding the power of polarity or reducing it?

Either-Or ? Both-And? Final Choice?

Those who respond to the Acceleration with Choice #2, again and again, are becoming super clear. Some call this "Becoming the New Human;" I think of it as Embodying Your True Self. We correct ourselves quickly when we backslide or when the intensity pushes us to clear ourselves even more and understand even more challenging things. We tend to not polarize.

We look deeper to find the real, evolutionary reasons behind surprising, seemingly "negative" events—why the experiences need to occur and how they pave the way for upliftment. we live by understanding, so the clarity and compassion we achieve is not in opposition to those still caught in fear. We see through a both-and filter.

We who are becoming awakened (not "woke" in the sarcastic sense) don't add to the split. We remember spiritual truth and universal principles and constantly return to this all-encompassing perspective. We hold the vision and experience of an enlightened reality in our present-moment attention. We adapt as intuition guides us. We work with energy dynamics and the instantaneousness of the unified field and "kinesthetic telepathy" to convey a felt sense of a highly harmonious, super-functional reality—without force or neediness. For us, there actually is no split, just a bit of turbulence in the field as negativity—which we see as a mistake in perception—shakes loose.

At the same time, we teach, communicate, and gather; we might organize clarity groups or campaigns, show up at town hall meetings and rallies, speak on podcasts and conference stages, or work kindly with strangers while out shopping or driving. We do it without resistance as a positive statement in service to a higher reality that encompasses and goes beyond the two fear-based polarized positions.

Of course, in each moment there is a choice, whether it's in a moment of flow or pause, when we're dealing with "stuff" or "space." This year calls for us to stop and remember the common plight of humans—in every moment we can. We're simply seeking to experience how good and loving we are, what we're here to contribute that can add to and improve this earth reality, and how unconditional Love really is. We choose to be saturated in this remembrance, this wisdom. Then act as guided. We commit to not feeding harmful polarities.

The Acceleration Frees Subconscious Fear— and This Influences Politics

With the Acceleration and high-frequency energy also comes the releasing of fear-based past experience and memories that have been suppressed in the subconscious for lifetimes. Much human ugliness rises into consciousness and all that scares us floats freely in our personal and collective environments. We live in a sea of anticipation of the repeat of previous suffering, pain, persecution, abuse, trauma, cruelty, and the scarring effects of having to attack or defend oneself or our loved ones.

What to do? Do I have the power myself to clear these situations and create clarity and safety? Or do I need someone else to do it for me? This brings the two choices to the forefront again. Perhaps it's why I feel the need to focus on the boulder-in-the-pond that politics has become this year.

Dealing with the accelerating frequency of energy and consciousness, and handling the proliferation of fear “goblins” flying about while we’re awake and asleep, contributed significantly to how people voted in the US 2024 presidential election.

The campaign themes reflected the two choices quite clearly. One party wanted to “Make America Great—Again” by going back to a time when white men dominated women, children, other races, other countries, the environment, and each other. Back to when America was isolationist and supposedly “pure.” When money began to migrate from the many hands of the lower and middle classes to the privileged hands of the upper class. That campaign's rhetoric was ugly, derisive, spiteful, and smug.

Meanwhile, the other party chanted, “We won't go back!” “When we fight, we win!” We're “for the People,” “turning the page,” and finding “a new way forward.” The tone was upbeat, freedom-oriented, and joyful.

Though the tally indicated the vote was close to evenly split, those who chose safety and the status quo, who wanted a strong “tough” man to save us, as well as those who were angry, blaming, and on the verge of violence, won. I tuned in and asked Why?

My inner voice said, “The Flow of Life—Spirit—in its often seemingly illogical wisdom, has allowed the multitude of fear goblins to gain reality and express themselves without shame. People were in an induced trance. What was presented and seen and heard by many was not what was actually being said, done, and meant. There was slight-of-hand and mesmerism; the mirage limited perception to the surface of things. There is a need for the subliminal fears that keep humanity divided from each other and their own soul to be physicalized, clearly scrutinized and understood, and finally disowned. The fears are lies caused by the illusion of separation and opposition.”

“For this reason the current president and administration are a perfect vehicle to bring the fear tactic of control and domination, of ego’s fatal flaws, into true visibility. By pride and ignorance, by carelessness and disrespect, and by flamboyance and zeal, this materialization will be its own undoing. The Acceleration continues and as the actions of this new group compound and have negative effects, the collective impact of these self-centered ones will fade. Their movement as an entity will increase in contraction and density while its frequency decreases. The vibration of their vision can no longer exist in the high-frequency atmosphere of the earth.”

I say this, not with hurt, hate, or opposition in my heart, but from clear observation: Our country elected a morally corrupt man, some say a “malignant narcissist,” who vows revenge on anyone who opposes him, champions people who use violence to do his wishes, and values white supremacy, fascism, ego, extreme wealth, and absolute power above compassion-based justice. He speaks negatively and crudely of everyone and everything that doesn’t agree with him and assumes he has the power to “delete” them from his reality by any means he devises.

He virtually worships other dictators and autocrats (because he wants to be one of them) to the point where they can easily manipulate him. He lies and changes his stance as the wind blows. There is no truth, except that he wants absolute power and ego strokes. This man and his followers—many who are also narcissists—freely exert their will and power in cavalier and heartless ways, with inflated pride in themselves for getting away with it since they assume they’re untouchable. The goal: to deconstruct democracy and the well-crafted American Constitution, and create an autocracy where he/they can have their way without repercussions.

The Hidden Purpose of “Narcissism Politics”: A Sneaky Form of Healing?

Obviously, our current dramatic shift in politics has emerged as a crucial catalytic force. Part of why I say it's a form of healing is that it is educating us about a number of important principles, if we have eyes to see and ears to hear.

— One huge lesson concerns narcissism. Narcissism occurs when wounded, vulnerable, self-doubting people, who feel they're alone against the world, decide it's up to them to create their own reality all by themselves—unless other people can be won over. So narcissists identify with their ego, and do everything to make it strong, infallible, chinkless. They're good talkers, charmers, manipulators, and work to be seen as the expert at anything they identify with: athletics, business, sex, power, money. They must have agreement from the outside world that they are the best, the winner.

When they lose that agreement they go ballistic. They try to force others back into submission by bad-mouthing, belittling, punishing, and banishing, and if that doesn't work, by eliminating them. They can be cruel and reject people without a backward glance. They do not really understand love, just agreement. Obviously, narcissism only works if they can find people who want to feel good or reap benefit by being in association with these seemingly "perfect specimens"—people who admire, even worship them. It is also clear that a narcissistic leader of any organization or country will never be "for the people" but only for their own power.

— Another lesson is that as the frequency on the planet increases, our identities are transforming. The personal and collective ego is "dying." Identifying as the ego is not expansive or comprehensive enough to accommodate the high-frequency energy and consciousness affecting us. Ego death doesn't mean no sense of self, it means a much greater sense of Self that doesn't need willpower, manipulation, and cleverness to succeed. We are being asked to release self-as-ego to become self-as-soul. Soul is a new kind of guide and leader, focused on unity and mutual support for all beings. We're learning how absolutely great we all are as souls, how much endless love there is, how we belong.

Ego thrives on the rugged individual archetype. It doesn't share, cocreate, or understand true gratitude and generosity. Everything is transactional: What's in it for me? What might I lose? For this reason, narcissists and narcissism politics engender isolation. And isolation doesn't know how to receive, only how to get and control the giver. Isolation is contraction, and contraction prevents the accelerating Flow from bringing accurate information and what's truly needed. With ego death, instead of being the boss, ego transforms to become the Implementer of the soul's guidance.

—I sense we will watch egos in action and learn: There can be only ONE! A group of narcissists cannot collaborate, cooperate, cocreate, or co-anything for long. Any two ego-identified narcissists, pretending to be partners, will soon try to slyly manipulate each other, then point fingers at each other, and attempt to one-up or eliminate each other's power. This pertains to the president and his loyalists, henchmen, and autocrat "buddies."

—We're also learning all about "projection," one of the ego's favorite methodologies. The outcome of the 2025 presidential election in America, according to many intuitives, may well have been secretly engineered. Whether true or not, it seems credible when we understand that when we lie and accuse others of an unethical act—like "stealing" an election by illegal means—it's often a ruse to deflect attention from what we ourselves are doing. Placing so much repetitive attention and so many loud pronouncements on a particular reality has the power to materialize it. It's part of the "What you resist, persists" principle. What you criticize others for is inherently part of your own reality and makeup. But with this projection/deflection, when you do it yourself, you're sure no one will notice. This administration has overused this tactic so much—from mockingly accusing rivals of being sleepy, ugly, crooked, two-faced, or stupid—they forget it implies that they're the same way. They have educated us; now we can recognize "projection" and see through it.

—Another lesson: shocking people with fear puts you in control and makes what you're actually doing relatively invisible. By harnessing sudden destruction the new leaders make fear palpable and experiential to get what they want. For them, it's GOOD to have an enemy and be an enemy. By taking away rights and benefits, quashing free speech, and causing our country to act as an aggressor against our friends—we automatically compare these realities to our preferred and more enlightened values of hope, common sense, ethics, equality, freedom, and idealism.

Wasn't it the domineering, controlling, limiting policies of other countries that caused all of us immigrants to come to this country and create a United States of America, Land of the Free? By reconnecting with our true soul values, we can also own up to our previously ignorant past behaviors when we did act as the dominator and exploiter of other peoples, as well as of the environment. Is that who WE want to be now? Here comes CHOICE again.

—And how about this lesson? By attempting to break down and destroy government institutions that we've become unconscious about, this new politics inadvertently directs attention to re-examine the needs and solutions that will fit for the new high-frequency times we're entering. Do certain habitual ways of doing things legitimately need reimagining and reinvention? Does the Constitution itself need tweaking to become a perfect fit for a more awakened populace?

From My Journal: Direct Writing

November 8, 2024

I hear war sabres rattling. Nature is upset, needs to shift, trees die and move to new climates, tensions must release, volcanic activity, large superstorms. The earth expresses frustration with the restriction of flow; she will belch. Up comes the lava, gas, ash. Watch places of congestion. Watch for cracking of ice, rock, earth beneath the oceans. New things arise from ocean depths, secrets buried and flooded become known, the true history of the earth is slowly revealed.

There is a release of frustration among the people. People kill what scares them. Assassinations. Cruelty shows its face. Many hide physically, emotionally, energetically and are empathically overloaded, paralyzed. Spurts of violent action meant to diminish the threat of variety boomerang back to the actors. Yet some choose to leave the earth: suicides, mass deaths through accidents. Invaders have mysterious losses, backfires, mistakes, self-destructive choices. We in Spirit can cause those in hate, preparing to do violence, to forget. We can interrupt, drain, and cause mistakes that lead to knowing truth and thus to healing and awakening.

The rise of ego-people and their drive for power and isolation at the "top" only goes so far. Sudden events force change, create shortcuts to clarity. Secret acts are made public. They are going backward and cannot see ahead. They are blind. They will show for all of what they are and will not be received. They will act without knowledge and destroy or help collapse old habits and thinking.

Ego's isolated reality and handicapped behavior begins to be seen as antiquated, ineffective, boring, even ridiculous: Oh, that again! Ego drive will be drawn into forgetfulness and diminished. The inflated balloon slowly loses air. For the ego ones, failure and shame return them to being.

And what of the ego leaders? They leave, are deposed, become ill, die, or awaken. The ego ones fight each other and exhaust themselves. Some see the futility and stop. Some give away fortunes, some have enlightened realizations about new leadership. Some feel intense failure and commit suicide in some manner even if via illness or at the hands of another. Political parties redefine themselves, see their own faults.

The frequency doesn't allow this turn to go on too long. It's a snag in a rushing river that will soon be swept along.

As ego pushes to control and conquer, people move to avoid, move place to place. Meet new people, make new connections, find more points of view. Learn. Open. Awaken. Gather. New land holds new truths.

There is a collapse of some treasured practices in governance and a rebirthing at the same time of better more holistic versions of the same with a felt sense of heart, respect, sharing. Nothing fails. What is, evolves. The waves, peaks and troughs carry us. Flow. Adapt to each happening. See the purpose. Learn the lesson. Integrate the ability. Not all this comes in one year but this is the start. The turning point. The choice you make influences the Flow.

There comes a void that allows new perception and people fill it and come into openness and realize. Here is the work of the brave—the healers, teachers, leaders of the light. Come forth and speak, touch others, no need to hide, much help, gather together and expand—at lightspeed. Words with energy and living pictures embedded. Courage that isn't war-related but an act of truth and love. Choose your tone, your reality. Include low frequency ones in this field of Us.

We help you to not allow old thoughts to reemerge and seem meaningful. We soften minds and let the high frequency mind move out beyond the skull to fill the space. It comes direct.

Children rise to power and influence; inventors, leaders of peace. Teachers of high creativity and energy dynamics. Proof is offered of “supernatural” gifts. Messages are sent from on high, our brothers and sisters of the stars flow their voice to us. Music takes a turn to influence the body-mind quickly via frequency, new rhythms from mathematics.

Solutions become high-frequency. Much new, new seeds sprout. You can look at anything now and see High Truth. People forgive mistakes. As this occurs the reality of star beings and intergalactics becomes evident. They come at the right time. Not so startling but the next thing that makes sense. It does not cause fear as it would have earlier in history.

This letter has blossomed to many pages and my hope is that the logic and deeper feeling I have attempted to convey accurately, will help you see and communicate more clearly. I hope it helps you to not feed the polarity but add to the delightful diversity-in-oneness instead.

To finish up, I'd like to share a quote from Drunvalo Melchizadek (slightly edited by me for continuity): "Instead of taking millions of years to (attain) the different levels [of consciousness], they will be done, sometimes in minutes, and we are going to go with the speed of light through evolution, and through many, many levels. This changes past, present, and future. All trace of the old way will no longer exist—it is just like changing the channel on the TV, it is just not there anymore... And slowly we are going to enter into another way. We have always known that the way is a 'good' way, because the heart will never do anything that is detrimental to anything else, because the heart knows: All life is one. Polarity is to be dissolved away."
